HE IS SLOWLY SINKING.

THE DYING PREMIER REFUSES NOURISHMENT.

He is Lower To-Day than Yesterday—The Latest Bulletins from the Sick Bed—The Re-Organization of the Cabinet—Who Are In It.

OTTAWA, June 3.—Sir John's condition remains unchanged since noon. A Cabinet Council is now sitting and Lord Stanley is present, which means that the question of a successor to the Premier is talked of.

The excitement over Sir John's health has been greater than at any time since he took ill. He cannot possibly live many hours. At 10:15 he refused to take nourishment and was sinking fast, gradually growing weaker. Every bulletin, as they issued it at the Commons and elsewhere is eagerly scanned, and the political situation is discussed. Senator Abbott, so far, seems to be the favorite for the Premiership, but Sir Hector will no doubt press his claims. The friends of Sir Charles Tupper and Sir John Thompson are working for their candidates.

Michael Conhelly appeared before the Privileges and Elections Committee again to-day, in the Tarte investigation, being represented by counsel. He brought his books and papers, but absolutely refused to leave them for examination with the committee, notwithstanding resolutions passed to that effect. Sir John Thompson said the matter would be reported to the House and as no progress could be made without the papers, the committee adjourned till to-morrow.

OTTAWA, June 3, 10 a.m.—Sir John refuses nourishment. He is gradually growing weaker.

11 a.m.—The doctors have just assembled for a consultation.

12, noon.—Sir John Macdonald's condition is lower to-day than yesterday at this hour. The alternations in his strength are not at shorter intervals than before. He takes nourishment less willingly than heretofore. Respiration thirty, pulse 138, very irregular and compressible. (Signed) R. W. Powell, M.D., J. O. Grant, M.D., Henry Wright, M.D.

1 p.m.—Sir John just the same since noon bulletin.

3.45 p.m.—The nurse has just turned Sir John from right to left side. No change in his condition. Sir Donald Smith and Hon. Dewdney are now in the house.

NEW YORK, June 3.—A special to the Herald from Ottawa says: It is declared on the authority of a prominent French-Canadian that the cabinet will be re-organized by Sir John Thompson with the following changes: Premier and Minister of Justice, Sir John Thompson; Minister of Railways, Hon. J. A. Chapleau; Minister of Public Works, J. A. Kirkpatrick; President of the Council, W. B. Ives; leader of the Senate, Lieut.-Governor Angers. The politician said that the remaining portfolio would remain the same, except that some French-Canadian member would succeed Chapleau as Secretary of State, and that the Hon. John Carling will probably retire from the cabinet to make room for Meredith, the present leader of the Opposition in the Ontario House. Sir Hector will be made Lieut.-Governor of Quebec and Sir Charles Tupper will stay where he is. It is all "bosh" he declares about Sir John Thompson refusing the premiership.

Guard and Convict Elope.

CALHOUN, Ga., June 3.—After an exciting pursuit Sheriff McGinnis, of Gordon county, succeeded in capturing W. M. Bolden and his companion, Eliza Randall, both of whom left the Piedmont convict camp near Bolton, Ga., on May 18. Bolton is white and was the guard at the convict camp, and the woman with whom he eloped is black. Bolton has been guarding the convicts for the Piedmont company nearly five years. He has made some effort to get Eliza Randall pardoned, and that failing he decided to leave the camp and to give the woman her liberty. He said he thought she deserved to be released, on account of her good qualities and kindness. Eliza was under a life sentence for the murder of Joe Randall, her step-father, some three years ago. She killed him with an axe. When captured she was dressed in man's clothes. Bolden was well armed and when ordered to surrender made an effort to use his pistol, but Sheriff McGinnis was equal to the emergency. With a double barreled gun he got the drop on him and Bolden gave in. The capture was made near Armstrong's Landing.

Terrible Accident.

FREDERICKSBURG, Va., June 3.—A terrible accident, resulting in the death of five men and the wounding of eight others, all dangerously, occurred in J. L. Jordan's sawmill, near Bowling Green, yesterday. Men were at work near the engine when the boiler burst. They were caught in a shower of missels and scalding water, several of them being buried out of sight in the ruins. Uninjured employees hurried to the rescue, medical aid was immediately summoned and everything was done to relieve the injuries of those taken out alive.

THE LABOR SITUATION.

Strike of the Chicago Lathers—The Iron and Steel Association.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Five hundred lathers struck to-day for an increase of 20 per cent. in wages. All the big contracts in the city are interrupted.

PITTSBURG, June 1.—The annual convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers will open here to-morrow. The wage committee has been in session for three days preparing a scale for presentation to the convention, and from the progress made it is safe to say there will be no change in the price of making iron from that in force last year. The committee on the steel scale is also preparing its report. It is generally believed that the manufacturers will accept the current rate for the current year without attempting to reduce it.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 1.—A secret meeting of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Switchmen's Mutual Association was held here last night. It is believed that federation of these organizations was discussed.

BASEBALL.

In the next match with the Colts of Townsend, the Amities will not have to play against Will Lange the popular back stop, as he has left the club to join the Seattle league team. He is a fine back stop, and his throwing to bases is as fast and accurate as that of a Ewing or a Bennett. He is also a strong batter. For the past two seasons Lange has been catching for Port Townsend, and in that town he is looked upon as the ideal ball player.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Opening of the Assizes—Foreign Coal Shipments Injured, Etc.

NANAIMO, June 3.—There was quite an interest shown at the opening of the assizes yesterday, and the courtroom was almost crowded. The grand jury were first sworn in, and comprised about 20 of our leading merchants.

His lordship, in charging the grand jury, regretted his inability to congratulate them on the length of the calender, or on the nature of the crimes there specified. Most of the cases were stamped with brutality and bestiality, and there appeared to be a wave of this horrid class of crime passing over the country. He then reviewed the several cases to come before the grand jury, and dealt more particularly with the assault against Slater.

The Grand Jury returned true bills against Wilson, for forgery; Ah Sin, for larceny; Alfred Alderman, carnal knowledge of a child; W. Paisley and J. Paisley, on a similar charge, and "no bill" against R. Slater, for assault.

The case of Wilson and Ah Sin was then brought up and both found guilty, but the learned judge withheld sentence until all the cases have been tried.

THE BACCARAT TRIAL.

POPULAR INTEREST IN THE CASE INCREASING.

Sir William Gordon-Cummings Finishes His Long Examination—The Prince of Wales as a Witness—The Lawyers Handle Him With Gloves.

LONDON, June 2.—Popular interest has immensely increased in the baccarat trial. The court room was filled long before 11 o'clock, about the same people being present who attended yesterday; but many of them had secured better positions. There were about 40 ladies in the body of the hall and about a dozen on the bench. The Prince of Wales was as punctual in his attendance as before. The audience rose to their feet when he entered, and as he passed to his seat on the bench there was a subdued cheer.

Sir William appeared to be as cool as ever, and, if anything, a bit more aggressive in his attitude. He was less jaunty and more stern in his demeanor. The terrible cross-examination to which he was subjected, yesterday, would seem to have put him on his mettle.

Sir Charles resumed his remorseless cross-examination, the replies being followed with breathless interest. It is felt by all that this is the critical part of the trial, and that on Gordon-Cumming's own statement his exoneration depends. Sir Charles was disposed to give his victim more freedom and encouraged him to make long answers, as all the more likely to be incriminating. He did not, however, have matters all his own way, and at one or two points received amazing set-backs. In making all the capital he could out of Gordon-Cummings' letter to General Williams, he mistook the words. The witness interrupting, called his attention to the blunder and cleverly turned the point which counsel was trying to make against him. Sir Charles was nettled, and turning to Solicitor Lewis spoke to him sotto voce with evident temper at the trap he had been allowed to fall into. Notwithstanding his efforts to subdue his voice, the court had heard every word of the scolding he administered. In the course of it a profane expression was too distinctly audible, whereat a titter ran around the room. The Prince of Wales smothered a laugh in his beard, the Lord Chief Justice busied himself with a pre-occupied air, and the ladies fluttered their fans and hid their blushes. Witness became warier as the examination advanced, warned by the heated manner of his inquisitor. He generally maintained his coolness, although at certain sharp questions he would flush up and stroke his face, but he would quickly recover and proceed with his answer, clear and undisturbed. He persisted in his habit to leaning on the rail. The witness box is hardly a yard from the Prince of Wales, which brings the two gentlemen in rather close contact. His Royal Highness is evidently becoming bored with the proceedings, although he shows no sign of the fact in his face. He frequently folds his arms, adjusts his single eye glass and surveys the court.

At last the long examination was completed, and at 10 minutes past one the Prince of Wales entered the witness-box. After a brief conversation with Lord Coleridge, he was sworn, kissing the Bible heartily. Standing up in the box, the appearance of the Prince was more observable than heretofore; he wore a black frock coat and black necktie. He grasped the rail with his ungloved hands and during the delivery of his direct testimony he did not take his eyes off Sir Richard Clark, who sometimes addressed him as "Your Royal Highness," and sometimes as plain "Sir." He answered the questions addressed to him in a low tone of voice, so that his words were scarcely audible. Not more than a dozen were asked. Sir Charles Russell briefly cross-examined, handling with gloves His Royal Highness. The Prince was not kept in the box over fifteen minutes. As he was stepping from it a remarkable incident occurred. A juryman arose and begged to ask His Royal Highness whether he had any suspicion that cheating was going on during the play at Tanbycroft. The Prince, with a smile, turned towards his interrogator and replied that, as banker on the occasion, he considered they were having a quiet time at a country house, and it was not thought necessary to watch the players. From the beginning to the end of his examination the Prince was nervous and uneasy. He hurried away after replying to the juryman's question, and there were no further interruptions.

At this point the court took a recess, and the Prince retired to the room of Lord Elcho, Master of the Rolls, where he lunched with his Private Secretary, Sir Francis Knollys. The Prince of Wales did not return and interest in the proceedings flagged.

Gen. Owen Williams, who was one of the players in the famous game at Tanbycroft, was next called to the box. He has a military bearing and presented a frank, soldierly appearance. He added little to what is already known, but succeeded in impressing the court with a belief in Cumming's guilt.

LONDON, June 3.—It is said that Lord Middleton, brother-in-law of Sir William Gordon-Cumming, is supplying the ready money needed for the baccarat suit. Sir William, notwithstanding the claims of his counsel as to his independent means, not having any more funds than he needs for immediate expenses. It was Lord Middleton who first urged Gordon-Cumming to bring the case to trial, and he is said to have been highly indignant when he learned the existence of the exculpating document. For some time there was talk of a possible encounter between Lord Middleton and Arthur Wilson. A dispatch from Inverness says that the interest on the trial in the north of Scotland, where the Cummings and the Middletons have seats, is intense. Cumming is said to be a direct descendant of the person of that name who was killed by Robert Bruce, and the family is one of the most ancient in Scotland. Their leanings have always been toward the Tories.

EUROPEAN GOSSIP.

A Horrible Case of Murder and Suicide in London.

LONDON, June 3.—A horrible case of murder and suicide came to light to-day. The scene is one of those quarters of Kentishtown, a suburb of London. A neighbor of a family occupying apartments in the house noticed that none of the family had been seen for some time. On opening the apartment the heads of the family and a child were found dead in the room. Judging from the situation the man first killed his wife and child by cutting their throats, and then killed himself in the same manner.

THE IRISH CENSUS.

The result of the Irish census has caused some surprise, showing that notwithstanding the condition has improved in some respects, the country continues to lose population. It is also made evident the larg r Ireland is abroad. It is the first census in this century that has shown the population of Ireland below the five million mark. In 1801 the figures were 5,395,456, over 600,000 more than the present population. It was thought that the home rule movement during this decade would have diminished the tide of emigration, but such does not seem to have been the case.

A JEWISH PRINCIPALITY.

Jewish capitalists are said to be considering favorably the settlement of half a million Jews in the northwest of Arabia, near the Red Sea. The land is under Egyptian rule, and the soil is fertile, with a good climate, while only few wandering Arabs lay any claim to occupation. The proposition is to establish a principality, under the suzerainty of the Khedive, and with some wealthy London or American Jew as reigning prince of the province, which would be autonomous and have its own military and system of police, etc. The Egyptian government is favorable to the proposition, and the question is where to find a prince. Baron Hirsch has been mentioned, and also a prominent Hebrew banker in New York. The person thus honored would be permitted to subscribe liberally to the foundation of the principality.

LOOKING FOR ANOTHER WIFE.

The Grand Duke of Hesse has been having lively times in London, and there are indications that he has been looking for another morganatic wife. He is the widower of Princess Alice, and the father of the Grand Duchess Elizabeth of Russia, who has recently been converted to the Greek church. The Duke has been an almost nightly visitor at a noted London music hall, and has spent a good part of the time in the admiration of a well-known female performer. If the latter has read the history of the Grand Duke's first morganatic wife, whom he discarded for the Princess Alice, she will probably take all the Grand Duke has to offer in the way of gifts, but will avoid any matrimonial arrangement.

THE MOSCOW EXHIBITION.

The Russian press claims that the French exhibition in Moscow is in the hands of Hebrews, who practically control the concern, on account of advances made to the projectors of the enterprise. The statement is believed to be true, and it has cast a damper upon the Russian interest in the exhibition.

THE GERMAN FOOD.

The food situation is becoming a grave one in Germany, and the continued rise in the prices of grain is already causing suffering among the poor. The failure of the Government to act promptly in reducing duties, for the popular benefit, is the ground for deep and widespread irritation. Prince Bismarck is said to be quietly promoting, through his confidential journalists, a revival of anti-Semitic feeling in Germany.

Parnell Impeached.

DUBLIN, June 3.—The National Press to-day accuses Parnell of misapplying certain funds, and announces its intention of reiterating the charge in order to compel him to take legal proceedings against its publishers. The paper adds, "Our secretary waits in his office to receive the service of a writ from Mr. Parnell."

Revolutionary Students.

ST. PETERSBURG, June 3.—The police have discovered students societies there which have affiliated with those of Moscow, Krew and Odessa, with the object of revolution. The Government proposed to transfer the medical college and technological institute from this city to another provincial town in order to be better able to suppress the action of the students.

B. C. Weather.

PUTNAM AND DRIVER.

CHAMPIONS OF SECULARISM AND CHRISTIANITY.

The Great Controversy at the Victoria Last Night—The Free Thinkers Creed and Christianity Expounded—Large Crowd, but No Converts Made.

The Victoria Theatre was well filled last night to listen to the arguments pro and con, on "the Divine Claims of the Bible and the Christian Religion." Shortly after half-past seven Mayor Grant, who occupied the chair, stated the subject of discussion, and the time to which each speaker was limited. He then introduced to the audience, Mr. S. P. Putnam.

Mr. Putnam, in opening said that it was not to be expected that all the questions in difference between Free Thought and Religion could be discussed within the limits of an hour, but he took his stand that night upon the platform of Thomas Paine, whose creed, as given in the "Age of Reason," was embodied in the following: "It has been my intention for several years past to publish my thoughts upon religion. I intended it to be the last offering I should make to my fellow citizens of all nations, and that at a time when the purity of the motive that induced me to it could not admit of question, even by those who might disapprove of the work. I believe in one God and no more, and I hope for happiness beyond this life. I believe in the equality of man, and I believe that religious duties consist in doing justice, loving mercy, and endeavoring to make our fellow creatures happy. The world is my country, and to do good is my religion." Some might ask were they to have no kind of God—no revelation? He answered, yes, there was a word of God and a revelation. The word to God was the creation we beheld, and it was this revelation which no human invention could counterfeit, nor alter its language, that spoke universally of all men, which preached to all nations and to all worlds, revealing to man all that was necessary for man. His power was seen in the immensity of creation; His wisdom in the unchangeable order by which the incomprehensible world was governed; His beneficence in the abundance with which He filled the earth; and His mercy in not withholding that abundance even from the unthankful. In fine, did they want to know what God was? Search, not the book of the scriptures, which any human hand could make, but the scripture of the creation. He did not purpose to discuss the questions of the immortality of the soul, of the genuineness of the bible, or as to whether there was any discord between the scriptures and geology. He would simply take the bible itself. Whether it was a miraculous revelation or not? He proposed to show that it could not be. He did not deny that there were some good things in the Bible, nor that in some places it taught virtue—it was the philosophy of free thought to accept everything that is good. Free thinkers believed in goodness, in virtue, in morality, and where such were met with in the Bible they took no issue with Christians. So far as Christianity had been of any service to humanity or its churches had helped mankind in making man brighter or better, they had his heartiest rejoicing. If there was a God in this universe, was he not a good God? a God of justice? an infinitely perfect being, in accordance with our highest conceptions of the true and the beautiful? And could they believe that this God would do anything that was cruel or wrong? He appealed to their reason and their humanity that evening; if there were things in the Bible that were not for the honor and glory of God, he asked them to reject those things, standing by their own consciences, reason and humanity. The Bible declared God to be an immoral being—could it be a divine book? It taught that God, the infinite, all-wise being, repented. He saw everything that He had made, and beheld that it was very good. He sometimes wondered where the devil was at that time. Did God declare that Satan was very good, or did the devil come into existence afterwards? "It repented the Lord that He had made man on the earth." He asked them if the destruction by the flood was in accordance with their conceptions of the attributes of the Deity, drawing as a parallel on a smaller scale the Johnstown disaster which sent a thrill of horror and sympathy all over the world. According to the Bible, also, God had commanded slavery, yet had He not made the heathen as well as the children of Israel? He had commanded wars of extermination and murder. And they believe such a record of an Infinite Being? The speaker did not; if he believed in anything, it was in a God of love and justice, in a God that would remove all evil and wrong, and that would help every one of the human race. The Bible also declared the hatred of God for children yet unborn: "The older shall serve the younger; Jacob have I loved, but Esau have I hated." King David was declared a man after God's own heart, yet he had tortured and killed both men and women in the cities against which he fought. The Bible, too, favored persecution, and the horror of religious wars was shown in the history of the church, whose bloody pathway was strewn with millions of the innocent slain. And they believe, as they read of the wars of the Middle Ages, that a God of love and justice was the author of such crimes? The speaker did not accept such a book as that. Was there, he asked, any one there that night who believed in witchcraft? The religion of science of to-day rejected such a barbaric idea, yet if they did not believe in witchcraft they did not believe in the bible. Did they believe there was any God in the universe who believed in witches? The Bible declared that God was a liar and deceived people; "For this cause God shall send them a strong delusion and they shall believe a lie." One of these delusions might be upon his friend that evening. The fact was, that the Bible expressed the ideas of a savage, ignorant age, not the ideas of science and civilization. Then who could believe that story of Jonah? (A voice—I do.) "As Jonah was three days and three nights in the whale's belly, so shall the Son of Man be three days and three nights in the heart of earth". Thousands of Christians today did not, but Jesus believed it, who according to one record was two nights and one day in the heart of the earth, and who yet had declared as above. Jesus, it said had not come to save everybody. For his part, the speaker did not believe in a little heaven in the midst of an infinity of horror and despair. He did not want to be so freed from human affection as to be able to look over the golden battlements upon a seething lake of fire and behold those whom he had loved in this world in eternal torment, and be able to turn from that sight and thank God for saving his soul. They talked about the Gospel of "peace and good-will." "Brother shall deliver up brother to death, the father the child, and the children shall rise up up against their parents and cause them to be put to death." Thos. Paine had said, "If there is anything in any system of religion that shocks the mind of a little child, that is wrong," and it was. If there is a God in this universe he does not want us to be afraid of him, nor to be slaves, nor to crouch to the earth, but to recognize and affirm the grandeur of our being, the divinity that is within as well as that which is without. The speaker next read of the casting of devils into the herd of swine, saying that by that it was shown the Saviour believed in demoniac possession, which to-day was recognized as being merely insanity, and that by his action he had infringed upon private rights in causing the destruction of the swine, making it no matter of surprise that the people requested him to leave that part of the country. It showed that Jesus was simply a creature of his own time; there were some good things in him, but the stamp of imperfect human knowledge was upon him. Did they believe in the doctrine of eternal hell to day? Yet it had been taught by Jesus, while the same bible said "the dead know not anything; for there is no work nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave, whither thou goest; for that which befalleth the sons of men befalleth the beasts. As the one dieth, so dieth the other." He did not believe in the doctrine which sent countless generations to an everlasting prison house of despair. If they looked beyond the grave, let them look to something that was glorious and noble, not conceiving a God who repented, was sorry, encouraged slavery, commanded the shedding of human blood, or who declared that David was a man after his own heart. If ever there was a rascal in this world it was David, and that book was not divine which commanded persecution and filled the world with blood and horror. (Loud applause).

Dr. Driver, who, upon being introduced by the Mayor, was greeted with an ovation, said that if the Bible was the word of God it depended upon some evidence of another instrument. It was therefore the work of a lawyer to authenticate the scriptures, and of a theologian to interpret them, and all that his friend had said that night was a labor of love, because he had been trying to establish the authenticity of an instrument by interpreting its precepts. He stood there that evening staking his honor and reputation as a man—and he had some in his own country—offering $500 and 1800 years of human history to his friend if he would show any treatise written against the Bible's authenticity in any language, but what had done just as he had done. The laws that governed civilized peoples to-day were the concentrated wisdom of the Persians, the Greeks, Romans, Goths and a variety of other nations. Supposing the proposition before them was the Constitution of the United States, it could only be done by introducing collateral testimony. Celsus read a treatise against Christianity eighteen hundred years ago, by the interpretation of its precepts, to prove that God never made the book, and every man who had followed him had done the very same thing. In the republic of America, statesmen and jurists were wider apart in the interpretation of the Constitution of the United States, than almost any other made in the history of man; it had sent millions to premature graves, to say nothing of distress and loss of property, just in the interpretation of an instrument written in the English language and almost within the memory of man. If it took that much to interpret such an instrument as that, what would it take to interpret the Constitution of the Universe? What one said was right another said was wrong, and he could take one infidel and knock another one's brains out. What Paine said in the "Age of Reason," "I believe in one God and no more," there never was a pagan, Jew or Mahommedan who believed anything else. That book was the foundation upon which the civilized world was built to-day. In America, and wherever the British flag floated, under the laws of those countries every judge who sat upon the bench declared that Christianity was a part and parcel of the common law. As Blackstone said, when it was faithfully interpreted, there was not a jar between nature and revelation. Notice what Paul said, that Nature was his guide, and there was no single instance of the apostle, in controversy with the Gentile congregation, ever quoting one word in that book, in the sermon on Mars Hill, that they did not understand him as coming from nature. One ca not put down a word in the English language that cannot be read, and every word put down is the "logos," the thought that a blind man can see. Incarnate the thought that you can see it and feel it. God is a God of love, but he is the God of Nature. Does he not sweep nature off with the besom of destruction when they pass the limit and have been reproved, to save the rest? Would it be mercy and love to let a race go on in its transgression and retrogression until it went so far that it could not be reclaimed? It is not a question of right and justice for all people have to die—it is a question of perpetuity. Christianity was a hospital to heal the sick; he (the speaker) was in it, and his friend ought to have been in it. The speaker gave several illustrations of his point, including the slaying of the Ammorites, thus preventing the perpetuity of a wicked race, to prevent the bringing into the world of those who would be a curse to and a destruction of the human family. He affirmed that it was a solemn law; all such that his friend had had to read was true, but this was his (the speaker's) interpretation, and he could intepret as fast as his friend could. There was only one mode of trial and that was before the proper authorities, and upon a document, upon proof was put a proper seal, attesting its authority. If the seal of Queen Victoria, or Ben Harrison, were put upon any substance that would carry it down the stream of time; it would be just as good testimony 100,000 years hence as it was when the witnesses were living. The Bible was the testimony of Christianity even as the constitution of the United States was the testimony of that country's existence, open, apparent, not like the solitary journey that Mahomet made from Mecca to Jerusalem alone, for which there was only the testimony of Mahomet, or the testimony of Joseph Smith as to the Mormon Bible. The Bible had been preserved, not by a miraculous suspension of Nature's law, but without such intervention. Take a Jew, or an Englishmen, Scotchmen or Frenchmen to America, and in two generations he and his descendants would have mixed with the country, and you might as well search for a bucket of water put into the sea. Some things were hard to understand; it was something to be a good man, but hard to be a wise man. But these mysteries were for human progress, and they must remember that human progress was based on ignorance; for if there were no ignorance there would be no room for progress. The Chinese discovered gunpowder 500 years before Christ, but they had gone no further than to blaze it away in fire-crackers. There never yet was an imposter between heaven and earth who died testifying to what he knew to be a lie with his dying breath, because he believes that he is about to pass to a future state.

Used It Secretly For a Time.

It was supposed to be a profound secret, but owing to a very peculiar circumstance it leaked out. One of Montreal's most successful business men, and a strict church member, and one who was always looked upon as a total abstainer from alcoholic beverages, was compelled by medical law to use a certain quantity of brandy three times a day as a stimulant and invigorator. This merchant, from morn to night, had the cares and trials of an immense business on his shoulders; and some time ago became so weary, thin, worn out looking, and withal, so nervous and irritable, that his condition excited dread and alarm amongst his friends. For weeks the brandy diet was strictly adhered to in secret, when suddenly, coming to a consciousness of his folly and his physican's stupidity, he resolved with great determination to give up the brandy and try a remedy which had been recommended by a well known Corn Exchange man. This remedy proved to be Paine's Celery Compound, and its use was at once commenced by the merchant. His surprise and pleasure was great after using the Compound for a week. He found his appetite returning, his nervous system in better condition, and strength taking the place of lassitude and weariness. In less than a month his bodily strength was greatly increased, his sleep was healthful and refreshing, and his capacity for work as great as ever before.

This is not an uncommon case; scores of such could be pointed out if necessary, showing the useless, yea the evil effects of alcoholic stimulants, and the grand results of that grand restorer and tonic, Paine's Celery Compound.

THE CRY OF MILLIONS

OH, MY BACK!

STOP IT NOW,

SOON IT WILL BE TOO LATE.

I have been troubled many years with disease of the kidneys and have tried many different remedies and have sought aid from different physicians without relief. About the 19th of April I was suffering from a very violent attack that almost prostrated me in such a manner that I was bent over. When I sat down it was almost impossible for me to get up alone, or to put on my clothes, when had Providence sent Dr. Henley, with the OREGON KIDNEY TEA, to my hotel. I immediately commenced using the tea. It had an almost miraculous effect, and to the astonishment of all the guests at the hotel, in a few days, I am happy to state, that I was a new man. I will recommend the tea to all afflicted as I have been.

WHITE ROCK, B. C.

This Townsite is situated on Semiahmoo Bay, and is the only deep water seaport between the International Bounday Line and Vancouver, B.C. It will probably be the Mainland starting-point of the Victoria, Saanich & New Westminster Railway. It is now the outlet for the finest agricultural district in British Columbia.

The C.P.R. has made a survey of a line from Vancouver direct to this point. The Royal City Planing Mills Company has built a substantial wharf here, and has established a lumber yard, which supplies the farmers of this district. A handsome Hotel has been erected and building is going on rapidly. Several influential and far-sighted orporations have acquired large tracts of land surrounding this Townsite.

SUITS TO ORDER

CHEAPER THAN EVER.

Since the formation of a union amongst the tailors in Victoria prices for clothing have advanced to such an extent that people are sending East for their suits. And we don't blame them, either, if they can save from $10 to $20 a suit. We pay union prices simply because we have to; not that we consider it right.

We were paying our men the same wages before union prices were enforced that we paid them ten years ago, when we received from ten to twenty per cent. more for our suits.

We have from ten to fifteen thousand dollars invested in tailoring, and we propose to turn it over at least twice a year, regardless of profits. To do this we will make suits cheaper than we did before we paid high prices for making up. Good Tweed and Serge Suits, $25.

Irish Tweeds, $27, $28, $30 and $32. If any other tailor in town will prove that these goods are not genuine Irish Tweeds we will donate a Thousand Dollars to any charitable institution that he may name.

Black worsted suits $40. You will get the same goods for $48 or $50 elsewhere. We intend to make a specialty of tweed suits for $30; regular price is $35 to $40. We have the store for our other business; it costs us nothing for the tailoring department; we have the stock; we have a first-class cutter, and we have capital enough to run it if we don't make a cent. So now is the time to get cheap suits to order.

We are going through the stock marking everything down. Don't take everything for granted. See our new schedule of prices.

JOHN BULL IN THE STATES.

Under the heading of "Trusts An Alarm," Mr. PLIMSOLL, in the Nineteenth Century, discusses trusts in the United States. "For some years," says Mr. PLIMSOLL, "American merchants, or rather, speculators, tired of the gradual accumulation of gain by ordinary commerce, have combined, and by the employment of large capital have intercepted various commodities in their transit from the producers to the consumers. They then, being in a condition to control the market, were able to charge the public whatever they pleased. Frequently they cleared great gain, sometimes they failed to do so and suffered more or less loss. From special and temporary enterprises of this nature, they settled down about three years ago to more permanent work. These enterprises they called trusts." Mr. PLIMSOLL than goes on to say that he has been endeavoring for some time to collect the names of these trusts, but has been only partially successful, only having succeeded in getting hold of 71 combinations, which include 418 other trusts, involving $2,000,000,000, or considerably more than two-thirds of the entire manufacturing capital of the United States. Of these trusts space does not permit us to give the list in full, as furnished by Mr. PLIMSOLL, but herewith is appended some of the most important: The Twine Trust, composed of 32 corporations, the Sugar Trust, controlling 79 per cent. of the refined sugar consumed in the United States, Barbed Wire Trust, capital $11,000,000; Steel Trust, combination organized by English capital, Mineral Water Trust, capital $25,000,000; Rubber Boot and Shoe Trust, English interest $3,000,000, second of February last prices advanced 10 per cent; Linseed Oil Trust, Chicago virtually controls the market; Smelting and Refining Trusts, embracing all of the smelting works in the country; American Axe and Edged Tool Trust, heavy advances since 1890. Of minor trusts, we have the Canned and Dressed Meat, Cotton, Oil, Tobacco, Cigarette, Cartridge, Oatmeal, Pickles, Wrapping Paper, White Lead, Sewer Pipe, Spring Bed, Window Glass, Canned Goods, Salt and Pearl Barley, and divers others covering everything in the line of trade. Mr. PLIMSOLL next enquires, "What is the first thing done by a trust after incorporation? It raises prices." "And when the profits rise so as to make the managers of Trusts ashamed they water the stock. Twenty millions of Sugar Refinery stock has been watered so heavily that it now stands at $52,000,000. The Cotton Oil Trust, is also heavily watered, while the Straw Board and Paper Trust, is stated to have a "conspiracy capital" of $6,000,000. The curious feature of these trusts is, and something, too, that seems to account for the presence of the bill before parliament closing Behring Sea to British subjects is, that although the Americans were first in the field as organizers of capital, the "Britishers" have been prompt to "catch on." Thus the Steel Trusts of Chicago were organized by English capital, and so was the Tin syndicate of California. Englishmen have $3,000,000 in the Rubber Boot and Shoe Trust, while Englishmen and Americans together form the Paper Trust. The Flour Mill Trust, Minneapolis, $10,000,000, was formed by Englishmen. The Britishers are deep, very deep in business in the United States, as deep as they are in Egypt, and no wonder John Bull is regarding the destruction of Victoria's sealing interests with true British phlegm and equanimity. It is a clear case that John Bull is not to be stirred up to fighting the Americans as long as he can invest in American Trusts. The glib newspaper reporters comments on GOSCHEN's little bill re the Behring Sea, to wit, that SALISBURY's policy is to smooth matters with the United States that he may be ready for the European war, which seems imminent, is the sheerest nonsense. It is the British investor in the States who has some $400,000,000 invested there who is shaping SALISBURY's policy toward that country.

We should like to complete Mr. PLIMSOLL's version of the part these trusts played in the evolution of the McKinley bill, which enables trusts like the Meat and Window glass trusts to make a profit on their goods of from 125 to 150 per cent.; but space forbids. It is enough to have pointed out that if the McKinley bill is opposed to British interests, Britishers were largely instrumental in bringing it about. In the circumstances, is it not reasonable to presume that SALISBURY regards British interests paramount to colonial interests in Behring Sea? Verily, money makes the mare go, and British politicians just now seem to be the mare. It may be observed in conclusion that if the British conquest of the States continues, and it is desirable that Canada should trade with Englishmen, unrestricted reciprocity must follow as a matter of course.

IRRIGATION.

The Oregonian discussing artesian well irrigation in relation to eastern Washington and Oregon, supplies the following table compiled from the tax lists of several California counties as showing values before and after irrigation.

COUNTIES.	1879.	1889.
Fresno	$ 6,354,696	$ 28,397,110
Los Angeles	16,368,049	34,376,310
Merced	5,366,245	14,146,845
Orange	2,817,760	9,270,767
San Bernardino	2,276,983	23,267,855
San Diego	8,525,253	31,560,918
Stanislaus	6,232,368	15,094,903
Solano	2,651,367	6,966,097
Tulare	5,206,777	24,343,013
Total	$55,939,928	$234,912,991

Referring to the cost of artesian wells, the Oregonian quotes the Aberdeen (Dakota) Daily News to the effect that a six inch well can be put down for less than $2300, and that any of the principle wells at Aberdeen, Hitchcock, Redfield, etc., will irrigate 640 acres, which would bring the cost to less than $4 per acre for 12 inches of water during the growing season. Mr. HINDS, of the HINDS ranch, has been charging the farmers only $1 per acre and considers it a paying investment. Some of the wells in Dakota have cost as high as $7000, but if, as there seems no doubt, irrigation will increase the crop by at least ten bushels to the acre, even this large expense would be warranted by the increase in land value. The conditions which make artesian well irrigation possible in Dakota are not as conspicuously present in British Columbia. Still the results obtained in Dakota and California should inspire British Columbia to persist in boring until it shall become evident that further prosecution of the enterprise is useless. The game is worth the candle.

The Inspector of mines for Nova Scotia, Mr. GALPIN, shows in his report that there was a slight increase in the production of minerals during the year 1890. The following are the figures:

Gold, ounces	26,155	24,358
Iron ore, tons	45,997	51,101
Manganese ore, tons	67	266
Coal raised, tons	1,756,279	1,984,091
Coke, tons	35,565	36,738
Gypsum exported, tons	147,344	146,003
Limestone, tons	19,000	35,000
Copper ore, tons	500	2,000
Grindstones	18,000	8,385

The total coal sales for the year 1890 amounted to 1,786,111 tons, against 1,555,107 tons in 1889. The most noticeable points are that the home sales were 601,956 tons, as compared with 550,425 tons in 1889. The Province of Quebec took 751,931 tons against 631,796 tons in 1889, and 678,821 tons in 1888. The sales to New Brunswick were 224,776 tons, as compared with 195,174 tons in 1889. The sales to Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland show an increase. The United States and West Indies also took more coal than during the preceding year.

VICTORIA SHOULD MOVE.

The Tournament Will be Held Here if Victoria Raises the Funds.

The following letter was received by Chief Engineer Deasy this morning:

ALBANY, Or., May 28, 1891.

Dear Sir—I am this day in receipt of a letter from President Wolcsley, in which he says to write you that Victoria will have the Association this year, providing you can arrange for prizes. Write me the amount of prize money you will offer, and as soon as I receive your letter a meeting of the Board of Directors will be called, and the amount of prizes for each race arranged. In regard to the time, it seems to me that September 26 will be very appropriate. However, the date will be left at your suggestion. Let me hear from you again at your convenience, so that announcement can be made to all companies, etc. Yours respectfully,
C. W. WATTS,
Secretary N. F. Association.

It is very desirable that the tournament of the Northwest Firemen's Association should be held here, for the benefits to be reached will more than doubly repay the small cash outlay for prizes—some $3000. There will be at least 15 teams to compete, and each team will be composed of 15 men, and these with their friends and the great number that will be attracted to the city by the tournament will swell the number up into the thousands. There were over 10,000 strangers attended the Association's tournament at Tacoma, and from the great and increasing interest taken in these contests, there is no doubt but that a much larger number will visit Victoria. The Association is evidently desirous of holding its tournament here and it only remains to be seen whether the citizens will subscribe the necessary funds. It may be said that Vancouver has already granted $2000, and other cities have been working to have the Association hold its tournament with them, but Victoria is given the first refusal. Besides the contests the yearly meeting of the Northwest Firemen's Association will take place. It will be a good thing for business, bring thousands of strangers into the city, advertise real estate and besides give the firemen of Victoria a chance to spread themselves. Three thousand dollars is not a large sum to raise in a city like Victoria, and it is hoped that some action will soon be taken.

Dealing With the Infinitissimal.

A somewhat unusual description of property was given at a sale not many months ago in Victoria, but the following discounts it, and is said to have been found in a deed in Cincinnati: "The 1-1000th part of an inch from the northeast corner of lot No. 23, and running south one-quarter of an inch, thence west to the back line of said lot, thence north one-quarter of an inch, thence east to point of beginning." This extensive tract is said to have been bought by one G. W. Jones for $225.—Engineering News.

Nature requires aid in correcting irregularities at this season, and for both men and women no other remedy equals Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as a spring blood tonic. They supply all the constituents necessary to enrich the blood and build up the system. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid on receipt of price—50c. per box, or five boxes for $2—by addressing Dr. Williams Med. Co., Brockville Ont.

PUTNAM AND DRIVER.

His friend had said that Christ believed in devils. He (the speaker) would give $500 to anyone who would take a Greek testament and show where Christ cast out a devil, or where a devil was in a man or woman. Then as to what Jesus said of Jonah, the speaker wanted the words that Jesus uttered, not the translation of them; he would give his friend another $500 if he could find these words in the original. In translation "whale" had been substituted for "great fish." "Whale" was neither in the Greek nor Hebrew. If God could make a man live nine months without breath, could he not make him live three days and nights in the whale's belly? Then as to David being a man after God's own heart, it was in his public, not his private, character. No single instance could be found where he had perverted the constitution of his own history. His friend stood on the revelation of nature as seen in the clouds, stars, etc., and so did he, and men must try to read the incarnation of the thoughts of God from the past ages of the antidiluvian world to the present, and those who cannot read revelation in nature cannot read nature correctly, and see in it the three principles, body, soul and spirit.

Mr. Putnam followed, and while admitting that his friend had said many good things, argued that he had drifted from the question. He (Mr. Putnam) had spoken nothing about evolution that night, but about the Bible and he wanted his friend to stick to that. It reminded him of the boy that set the old hen on 120 eggs, giving as a reason to his father that he wanted to let the hen have a chance to spread herself. Neither had he touched the question of the authenticity of the Bible, or endeavored to prove it by the interpretation of the Bible. It was the divinity of the book that he had undertaken to disprove by showing its devilry. His friend had said that it was as a ruler that David was after God's own heart. Was not putting men and women under swords and harrows of iron an official act. He did that as king of the Jews. As to knocking out the brains of one infidel with another, that could be done with Christians. The history of the Christian church was one of bloody war and horror, and still Christians do not agree. There are "hundred different sects in this country, all fighting one another, and who cannot worship in the same church together, and whose members are even buried in different cemeteries. Infidels believed in the unity of mankind, and did not believe in quarrelling and killing those who did not happen to think as they did. As to the bible making civilization, the state of Palestine today was a sufficient refutation of that. It was not Christianity that gave the locomotive or steamship, and when Christianity was at the height of its power is yet known as the dark ages. The learning of Greece and Rome, the scholarship of Arabia, these were the powers that had given the radiant impulse to the civilization of to-day. As Ingersoll had said, the bible was merely an accompaniment of civilization, just as was the stove-pipe hat, yet no one gave the stove pipe the credit for the civilization of to-day. The infidel maintained the majesty of unchangeable law, and he protested against it being called the will of God. No loving God would cast ruin, unhappiness and suffering in any form upon life, yet the Bible declares that he does, and it could not be a divine book. His friend had said the seal of the Passover was put on the Bible. The Passover existed hundreds of years before the Bible was written. A seal was good for nothing if it could be proved that the will was not in existence until hundreds of years after. Not a book in the old testament had any earlier origin than 800 years before the birth of Jesus, and Moses lived 1500 years before the birth of Jesus, and none of the gospels were written earlier than 135 years after the latter's death. His friend wanted the real words of Jesus. They were not to be had. Jesus did not speak in Greek, and the gospels were simply stories that were in circulation for 135 years before they were written and were merely hearsay testimony, and if examined would be found to be a mass of contradictions, and not to be relied on. Even as the tale of Wm. Tell, which they all had believed, was now forbidden by the Swiss government to be taught in the public schools, enquiry having shown it to be a myth. His friend had quoted Celsus, and the fact was that there was not a book by Celsus in existence today. The Christians had not dared to hand them down to our generation.

Dr. Driver claimed that his friend had not touched his argument at all. As to the extraordinary statement that the gospels were not written until so long after the death of Christ, Ingersoll had said the same, and he (Dr. Driver) expected Mr. Putnam got it from that source. He had spoken to the Colonel about it, who denied having that meeting, but the proprietor of the Colonist had seen the attestation of the leading gentleman in Oregon, who had stood by and heard that discussion. Ingersoll, although a lawyer, had not offered any testimony about that statement. He had said to Col. Ingersoll if he asserted such a thing as that he would skin him alive; simply he was ignorant or he was standing up and lying to the young men of America. How could a man quote Matthew 150 years before it was written? Then Huxley's writing against the Old Testament was simply a dissertation without quotation; he was the man who put life in the bottom of the sea and was found out to be mistaken. That the Passover existed before Moses was one of the most extraordinary statements. He would give his friend $1000 to find such a statement in any history. As to destruction of human life by God, there never yet was a moral death for which the human had not been responsible; he was satisfied that no power on earth or in heaven or hell could make his friend moral, but he could live a life of purity if he would. Mr. Putnam had said he had not been discussing the bible. Had he not read passages to them from it, and was it not a principle of law that if one part of a document be read all must be read? There was not one jar between the old and the new testaments except "Jesus of Nazareth." Settle that, and Christians and Jews are all one. The speaker then touched upon the necessity of diversity, as well as uniformity, in nations, individuals, and even in property, and how capacity to distinguish was a necessary condition of civilization. Answering the statement of Mr. Putman about the worship places of Freethinkers being open to all, by relating how the janitor of Girard College stopped a gambler who sought to enter on account of his clerical appearance, but upon the latter responding with an oath, offering profuse apologies and requesting him to step in.

The allotted time having expired, a vote of thanks (moved by Mr. Putman and seconded by Dr. Driver) to the Mayor for acting as chairman was unanimously carried and the proceedings closed.

It was a subject of favorable comment that considering the nature of the discussion both sides were accorded by the audience a thoroughly impartial hearing, not the faintest attempt to interrupt either speakers having been made.

LATE REV. WM. POLLARD.

A Brief Sketch of His Life—Funeral This Afternoon

Rev. William Pollard was born July 31, 1819, in Sussex, England, and was therefore at the time of his death, on Monday last, approaching the close of his 72nd year. He began his active ministry in 1842, under the chairman of the Augusta District of the Wesleyan Methodist Church of Canada, by being placed in charge of Cornwall circuit. He was stationed subsequently on the following circuits, viz: Sherbroke, Toronto, Bytown (now Ottawa), Hamilton, London, St. Thomas, London (making in all five years in London), Quebec, Three Rivers, Kingston, Brantford, Toronto West (which included Richmond street, Elm street and Queen street, and supplied by three ministers, with Mr. Pollard as superintendent), Barrie, Cobourg, Victoria, B.C., and New Westminster. During the 36 years of his effective ministry he was 18 years chairman of the following districts, viz: Kingston, Brantford, Toronto, Barrie, Cobourg and British Columbia. In the third year of his pastorate of New Westminster, in 1878, failing health made it necessary that he should be relieved of all circuit and district responsibilities. A superannuated relation was granted him, which was continued for the past 13 years, during which his health was never sufficiently restored to allow of his being appointed to any field of labor. It was a matter of satisfaction to himself and to the people of Saanich that he should have been able to maintain regular services in that settlement for several years after his superannuation. After this he was still able to hold an occasional service with much of his old time vigor and with great acceptability for ministers of different denominations of this city. But through all those years his powers underwent gradual decline. To the last he maintained a deep interest in the work of God as it was being carried forward among all the churches, and in all lands. His interest in the work of the Pandora Avenue Methodist Church, of which congregation he was pastor for four consecutive years, viz., from 1871 to 1875, was evinced by his anxiety to be present at the opening services of the new church on the 17th of last month, a desire which was gratified, and which proved to be the last public service of the church of his choice that he was to be permitted to attend. On the morning of Saturday, May 23rd in attempting to rise, as usual, he became aware that his strength had forsaken him. His powers had suffered a further paralysis, but the ability to speak was not altogether gone. It became, however, increasingly difficult to make himself understood until eventually the only sign he could make to indicate yes, in reply to questions was by lifting up the right hand. Continuing to sink it became evident on Monday morning last that he had not much longer to live, and at 11 a.m., of that day the weary wheels of life stood still. Thus ended a life of great usefulness forty-nine years of which had been spent in the ministry of the Methodist Church, during which he had the joy of seeing the work in which he was engaged wonderfully prosper by his hands. In nearly all his fields of labor he was honored of his Master by extraordinary revivals of religion and large accessions to the membership of the church. His pulpit abilities were of a very high order as multitudes still living can attest. Having served his generation by the will of God he has fallen asleep. His works do follow him.

The funeral of the late Rev. William Pollard took place at 2 o'clock this afternoon and at 3 o'clock from the Pandora Avenue Methodist Church. The funeral was a very large one and among the many that attended not a few shed tears when they thought of him who lay in the coffin. The funeral services at the church were very impressive, Rt. Rev. Bishop Cridge, and Revs. Coverdale Watson, J. P. Betts, J. H. White, Dr. Driver, and Bryant taking part. The pulpit and choir rail were draped in mourning, the ladies of the choir also being dressed in black. Revs. J. H. White, Bryant, C. Watson and Betts made a few remarks. The pallbearers were, Revs. Bryant, Green and Crosby, and Messrs. D. Spencer, A. J. McLellan and J. Bullen.

The Sound Boats.

The steamer City of Seattle arrived from the Sound last evening in place of the City of Kingston. The steamer Edith is on the Whatcom route during the Seattle's stay on this route. Henry Jackson, assistant manager of the company, came over last evening to see about the Kingston, and the work to be done on her.

Will Recommence Work.

The Gordon Hydraulic Mining Company, which was organized about five years ago to work the old placer diggings on Leach River held a meeting in the Pritchard House yesterday afternoon. The object of the meeting was to get things in readiness to recommence work on their claim which will be done.

Due on Sunday.

The steamer Zambesi, due from the Orient on Sunday, has on board 35 Chinamen and 160 tons of freight for this port. After discharging she will go to Portland seeking a return cargo. Another lot of Oriental merchandise is already waiting transportation to Victoria by her. F. C. Davidge & Co. are her agents.

More Shacks Going.

Messrs. Elford & Smith, contractors for Dalby & Wilson's new block, to be erected on the corner of Johnson and Government streets, will start work immediately. The residents of the shacks at present on the property commence removing to-day, and no doubt by to-morrow night the old houses will have been razed to the ground.

Gun Club Meeting.

The Victoria Gun Club held their regular monthly meeting last night. The motion to reduce the monthly dues from $1 to 50 cents was adopted. Five new members were elected. It was decided to have the first competition for the Routledge cup at the Victoria Driving Park on Wednesday, the 17th. Due notice of the same will be given.

They Picked Up Tools.

Boys in the neighborhood of Spring Ridge have made their presence known lately by picking up tools from around new buildings. Jailer Mitten, who lives in the vicinity, was detailed to put in an appearance around the place during the evenings, since which time nothing has been lost and the boys enjoy themselves in a more orderly manner.

Cleanliness Next to Godliness.

The supreme thing in a house after a good kitchen and a good cook, is a good, well lighted bath-room, with a large, roomy bath. Porcelain baths are becoming very popular just now, and the solid handsome ones manufactured by Twyford in England, and imported only by Braden & Stamford, Fort street, are the best article. Quite a number have found their way into the fine new homes now being built.

Stonecutters' Union.

The granitecutters of Victoria met last Saturday, May 30, and organized the Granitecutters' Union, embracing Victoria and vicinity. The union is independent of the International Stonecutters' Union, and all granitecutters are invited to associate themselves with the newly formed union, which meets every first and third Wednesday in one of the rooms over the Delmonico.

It Speaks Well.

Real estate in the city is steadily increasing in value and every day new arrivals are investing in property for homes and businesses. The enterprising firm of Page & McGregor report having sold residential property in the last few days to the amount of $8035. In nearly every case the buyers intend to build and thus add just so much more to the steady growth of Victoria. These sales were chiefly to outsiders who are coming to make Victoria their home.

Miss Jessie Alexander.

William W. Alexander, of Toronto, brother and manager for Miss Jessie Alexander, who will give a dramatic recital in the Victoria next week, is in the city perfecting the arrangements. Miss Alexander is a young Toronto lady, who has achieved more than a local reputation in her chosen field. Her elocutionary talent is partly hereditary, her father having been known in Scotland as a reader of great merit. As a delineator of Scotch character Miss Alexander is said to be perfect.

A New Residence.

Messrs Hooper & Goddard, architects, yesterday awarded Messrs. Mathews & Co. the contract for Alex. J Black's new house, to be erected on Superior street. The residence is to be a very pretty one and planned to be both convenient and commodious. It is in cottage and villa style, two stories and basement. The rooms are all large and entired from wide halls. The interior of the house, like the exterior, will be very pretty. The cost will be in the neighborhood of $4000.

Holman's Body Found.

The body of the late Jas. Holman, the Esquimalt boatman, who committed suicide several weeks ago by jumping off the Esquimalt wharf, was found this morning by divers, who had been looking for him. There was a sack full of rocks tied to a rope around his neck, which he evidently put there to make sure of ending his life. Sergt. Langley notified the coroner, who will hold the inquest at 4 o'clock. The Sergt. also telegraphed to Mrs. Holman at Olympia who asked him to notify her if the body was found.

She Woke Them All.

The waitress in an hotel, like the boy at sea, is often made the object of practical jokes by the boarders. Last night one of the waitresses in a Victoria hotel was the victim. She came in rather late, when she discovered a log of wood with hat and boots and a bottle of whiskey in her bed. She ran out of the room screaming at the top of her voice, and was not satisfied until she had awakened everyone in the house and the log had been closely examined to make sure it was not alive.

Just Received.

In stock, new tub butter, 35 cents per pound; three pounds for $1. R. H. Jameson.

Going to Sitka.

U.S.S. Pinta, which has been at Esquimalt for the past few weeks, sails for Sitka to-morrow under pilotage of Capt. Hicks.

A Large Devilfish.

Yesterday afternoon the workmen engaged in filling in the James Bay flats caught a large devilfish within 10 feet of the bank. It measured 8 feet from point to point and 2½ feet wide.

Due This Evening.

The C.P.R. steamer Parthia which was expected here this morning did not leave Vancouver until 3 o'clock this afternoon, she having waited for the overland train. She is due here about 7:30 this evening.

On the 26th of this Month

Russell, McDonald & Co.'s fourteenth regular half yearly drawing takes place. The usual sum of fifteen hundred dollars divided into twenty prizes will be distributed to the lucky winners. Tickets can be obtained until the hour for drawing.

Should Be Removed.

Beacon Hill beach is at present an unpleasant place to go to, there being a dead horse there. It is below high water mark so the city authorities cannot remove it, but Sanitary Officer Bailey has requested the provincial authorities to have it removed.

Preliminary Exams.

The preliminary examinations for law clerks took place in the court house, Bastion square, on Monday and Tuesday. There were seven candidates from the different cities of the Province, but only two passed. The successful ones were R. B. Punnett, of Victoria, and F. R. McD. Russell, of Vancouver.

Commence Traveling.

The steamer City of Topeka arrived from the Sound early this morning and left at 11 o'clock for Alaska. She had on board 70 excursionists, who, before leaving took in the city and surroundings. This is the opening excursion of the season and the steamers for several months now will be well patronized. She had very little freight from Victoria.

A Goose Worth Having.

Geo. Gawlor, of James Bay, has a goose which beats all records. She commenced to lay on the 1st of February, laying 16 eggs and sitting on the 1st of March with 13 eggs, bringing out all of them on the 1st of April. She stayed with the young ones about two weeks and commenced to lay again. She layed ten eggs the second time and has brought ten goslings out to day. Whose goose can beat this?

Clinton Assizes.

On Monday next the Clinton assizes will be held, Mr. Justice Walkem presiding, when the case of Regina vs. Martin Van Buren Rowland is expected to come on for trial. Rowland stands committed for having, on the 14th of July last, robbed the stage coach of $4000 in gold. So far the evidence is circumstantial, but from the number of witnesses summoned by the Crown during the last week, every effort is being made to secure a conviction. Mr. S. Perry Mills, of Victoria, will conduct the Crown prosecution.

Information Wanted.

The following letter received some days ago by Supt. of Police Sheppard, explains itself. Any person knowing of the whereabouts of Mr. Crabb or his family would confer a favor by communicating with the superintendent:

Toronto, May 5.

Dear Sir.—I am trying to get some information respecting a Mr. John Crabb, who with his wife Martha formerly kept an hotel at Chatham in this province. I have heard that these people removed to Victoria some years since and that Crabb was at one time working in the streets, possibly in the employ of the corporation, and that he died in Victoria about two years ago. Any information you can give me about Crabb or his family I shall be very grateful for. Yours truly. W. T. BOYD.

The Big Tree.

The big tree for the Chicago World's fair is on its way to Seattle from North Bend. This log, which has been hewn, is four feet square and 112 long. It has been gotten out near North Bend by Jose & Son for D. Soper and some other Chicago men, who hope to sell the stick ultimately and thus reimburse themselves. There is a proposal to name this monster of the forest "Seattle." In order to get the log, which weighs about fifty tons, it was necessary to build half a mile of track through the woods. The cost of getting it on the cars at North Bend was about $600, and some $1,500 more will be spent in getting it to Chicago. The Pabst Brewing Company talks of buying the stick for a bar, and an estimate has been made that during the fair the company could sell over it 1,000 000 glasses of beer at 5 cents a glass—$50,000 worth in all.

"That tired feeling" is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla, which gives a feeling of buoyancy and strength to the whole system.

FINAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Eminent New York Optician Leaves for the East in a Few Days

And will Stop for a Short Time at Nanaimo and the Mainland Cities.

Mr. Seward regrets the necessity of his leaving Victoria while there are so many anxious to see him. His office will remain open an hour later each day during the remaining few days of his stay so as to accomodate as many as possible.

A large number of letters of gratitude have been received showing the grand result of the work done here, which has never been equalled before. Mr. Seward has proved his claim to be just, namely, as an expert optitian. He is second to no one in America.

Dr. McNaughton Jones, Dr. Milne, Postmaster N. Shakespeare, Collector A. R. Milne, and hundreds of others now wearing Mr. Seward's glasses speak of the work in the highest terms.

A record of the test and degree of the glasses given in each case is kept on the books for future reference, so that in case of accident, any person can have their glasses duplicated by addressing Prof. F. D. Seward, box 3,567, New York.

Office corner Yates and Douglas sts., 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.; evenings from 6:30 to 7:30 p.m.

NOTE.—In reply to a large number of communications from Nanaimo and the Mainland, Mr. Seward has decided to stop for a short time at Nanaimo, Vancouver and New Westminster.

Big Gathering of Indians on the Kamloops Reserve—The Thompson Rising.

From the Kamloops Sentinel.)

Mr. F. H. Patterson, accountant of the local branch of the Bank of B.C. is under orders to join the bank staff at Victoria. In his official capacity as well as in private circles, Mr. Patterson has ever been a great favorite.

Mr. W. M. Cochrane, solicitor, arrived in town on Thursday evening after an extended tour through Spallumcheen and Okanagon. He reports farming prospects very good in those sections of the country. The cereals are looking splendid and the farmers expect a yield of from 45 to 50 bushels to the acre.

A visitor from Nicola reports the presence of grasshoppers in that district. The pests are causing farmers considerable uneasiness.

During the week several large shipments of cattle have been made to the Coast. Six carloads passed through Kamloops on Sunday morning from Calgary, consigned to city butchers by Mr. A. C. Sparrow. On Monday Mr. Burns, Maple Creek, sent five carloads through, and on Wednesday the Douglas Lake Cattle Co. had eleven loads shipped and Mr. L. Campbell one. There was also a carload of horses from Mr. J. Edward's ranch.

Active preparations are being made on the reserve for a great gathering of tribes of the interior, to take place next week. The occasion is not a potlach, as the Indians on the Kamloops reserve do not hold such. It is to be a general meeting of Indians, and religious ceremony, which is expected to last for a week, during which the chapel is to be consecrated by the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese. It is estimated that not less than 1000 Indians will take part in the ceremonies.

THE BACCARAT SCANDAL.

Further Details of the Great Sensation—Aristocratic Gamblers.

LONDON, June 1.—The following is a fuller account of the opening proceedings of the famous baccarat case than has yet appeared in our columns:

Sir Edward Clarke, amid almost breathless silence, then opened the case for the plaintiff. He detailed the circumstances of the now almost famous card party at Tranbycroft, Arthur Wilson's residence, during the Doncaster meeting, in September, 1890. "Baccarat," said the solicitor, "had never before been played at Tranbycroft." He said that it would be his duty to put the Prince of Wales and General Owen Williams in the witness box, as their testimony would satisfy the jury that they saw nothing wrong on the part of Cumming. He concluded his address by making a brilliant, eloquent and passionate appeal to the jury in behalf of his client; who, he claimed, was plainly a victim of circumstances and a false desire to avoid a scandal, which would have implicated his hosts at Tranbycroft and his own friends who played baccarat with him there. At the conclusion of the solicitor's speech, Sir William Gordon Cumming, the plaintiff, was called to the witness box.

The plaintiff said that the Prince of Wales acted as banker upon the occasion referred to, and that General Williams was croupier. His (plaintiff's) attention was next called on the night of September 8th to the complaint made against him. The following evening, while dressing for dinner, Lord Coventry and General Williams came to him in his bedroom at Tranbycroft. The former said that some people, staying there, said he (Cumming) had, while playing baccarat the previous evening resorted to foul play. The plaintiff said that he then replied that it was a foul, abominable charge and a deliberate falsehood, adding, addressing Lord Coventry and General Williams: "What am I to do? You two are my old friends. For goodness sake say what is to be done."

The plaintiff then remarked that he added to this request that he placed the whole matter entirely in their hands, and that after dinner, at the suggestion of Lord Coventry and General Williams, he (plaintiff) had an interview with the Prince of Wales, to whom he repudiated the charge brought against him, and said: "Your royal highness will see what a terrible thing this is for me—I who have been attempting for twenty years to lead the life of an officer and a gentleman." To this, according to the plaintiff, the prince replied: "What can you do? There are five accusers." Cumming answered: "My first impulse is to publicly insult my accusers upon the racecourse to-morrow." To this the Prince of Wales, plaintiff testified, replied: "What is the use of that? There are five against you." Sir William said that half an hour after his interview with the prince, he was summoned to another room, where he found Coventry and General Williams, who told him that the only way to avoid a "horrible scandal" was to sign a document, which was produced and read. The plaintiff said that, although it was tantamount to an admission of guilt, he was persuaded to sign it, believing that he could trust his honor to Williams and Coventry. Cumming concluded his testimony with the same denial that he ever cheated at cards at Tranbycroft or anywhere else. The cross-examination of plaintiff was then commenced by Sir Charles Russell, leading counsel for defendants. The court, after hearing further testimony for the plaintiff, adjourned. The Prince of Wales remained throughout the examination.

Plaintiff said he had no reason to suspect malice on the part of any of the defendants.

Sir Charles Russell then glanced at a paper, and, turning towards the plaintiff, continued; "And does this express your opinion?" (Reading): "The worst of it is that I feel that they are acting perfectly conscientiously in the matter and they believed that they did see me resort to foul play."

"Pardon me," cried Sir William quickly, drawing himself up, his eyes sparkling and his whole manner denoting considerable excitement, "are you reading from any letter of mine?"

Sir Charles Russell replied: "Yes; does it express your feelings?"

"Yes," replied plaintiff, sharply. Then Sir William under cross-examination explained at length several points in baccarat playing. He also said he had nothing before him on the table while playing baccarat on the evenings of September 8 and 9 at Tranbycroft except a small piece of paper and a pencil, and possibly a tumbler.

Sir Charles Russell asked plaintiff a number of questions bearing upon the points in the case and cleverly sought to obtain an admission that the baronet increased his stakes when he won, and from questions put it was evident that plaintiff would be accused of so doing after seeing the cards of his neighbors.

Replying to a question Sir William said Lord Edward Somerset and Mrs. Coventry increased their stakes and also kept counters in their hands as well as on the table.

Plaintiff admitted that on the second night of the baccarat games at Tranbycroft the Prince of Wales said: "I wish that people would put their stakes where they can be seen." But plaintiff added that he did not think this remark applied to him more than to any one else. The baronet also admitted that he kept a number of counters in his pockets. He did not ask to be confronted with his accusers. It was folly on his part, he admitted, but he did many foolish things that evening. When he had presented to him in such a form this most horrible charge he lost his head.

In reply to further questions put by Sir Charles Russel, plaintiff said he did not recollect General Williams saying that the Duke of Cambridge would not be so lenient as they had been. He (plaintiff) had never ceased to regret that he signed the document agreeing never to play cards again. The baronet admitted that within twenty-four hours after signing this document he received a letter from Lord Coventry and General Williams, saying there was no possibility of doing otherwise than to believe him guilty, as there were five persons against one. He (Sir Charles Gordon-Cumming) signed the document in question because his friends advised him that he had no chance to prove his innocence, as there were five against him, and in order to avoid a scandal which would necessarily involve the Prince of Wales. Plaintiff added that had General Williams and Lord Coventry given him any indication that they had a belief in his guilt, he would not have signed the document presented to him.

Sir Charles Russell, at this stage of the proceedings, read a letter which Sir William Gordon-Cumming had handed to Gen. Williams before leaving Tranbycroft, in which the baronet said he hoped Gen. Williams would tell the Prince of Wales that he [Sir William] had been entirely guided by advice given by the Prince, Lord Coventry and Gen. Williams, though he denied the allegations made against him, as it was essential to avoid a scandal. In this letter Sir William also said he should never touch another card, and expressed a wish that his winnings should be given to some hospital.

Answering a question, the plaintiff said he had received a memorandum signed by the Prince of Wales, Lord Coventry and Gen. Williams, saying that they did not wish to be unnecessarily hard, but he [Sir William] must clearly understand that in the face of the overwhelming evidence presented, it was useless to attempt to deny the accusation against him, and so long as he complied with the conditions set forth in the document he [the plaintiff] had signed, silence would be maintained.

[The method by which Gordon-Cumming obtained an unfair advantage was the use of a small mirror before him, enabling him to read the hands of the other gamblers. It is an old trick among British aristocrats and other sure-thing manipulators.]

CANADIAN NEWS.

Sir John Wishes to be Buried in Kingston—Can't Find Purcell's Body.

Sir John Macdonald has left directions in his will to be buried in Kingston, which city he has represented in Parliament for years.

Joseph Bailey, aged 73, a resident of Toronto for over sixty years, fell on Saturday, striking his head heavily, and died in a few minutes.

A young woman named Melvia Hearn is under arrest at Cobourg, Ont., charged with having murdered her illegitimate babe. Her brother, Geo. W. Hearn, has also been arrested in connection with the same crime. It is alleged that he is the cause of the girl's trouble.

Mr. James O'Connor, the member of the Imperial Parliament for Tipperary, who, along with Mr. Redmond, a fellow member, has been addressing audiences in the United States in support of Mr. Parnell, is in Toronto. He positively declares the report of the secessions of Messrs. Harrington and Dwyer Gray from the Parnell party to be untrue.

Sir John Macdonald's illness, and the possible political complications that might ensue on the Premier's death, is having a marked effect on stocks and the Montreal market to-day was very weak and panicky. The general feeling in the street is that on Sir John's death there will be a sudden decline in stocks, and the feeling is an uneasy one.

A feeling reference was made in all the Courts of Quebec to the death of Chief Justice Dorion, and the Courts adjourned to await the funeral, which will take place on Wednesday. The question of Chief Justice Dorion's successor is already engaging attention. It is stated the position will be offered to Senator Lacoste, who is one of the leaders of the Montreal bar.

The detectives who were hunting for the body of the late Patrick Purcell, which was stolen a couple of weeks ago from the cemetery, have been unable to get any trace of its whereabouts or that of the ghouls, and will discontinue the search. The amount of the reward offered by the executors of Mr. Purcell's estate for the recovery of his body has been increased to $10,000.

The Globe's Washington correspondent points out a feature in the Behring Sea correspondence which may escape general notice. It would be absurd, he says, that the United States should agree to submit to arbitrating the subject of its jurisdiction in Behring Sea. This is practically an official surrender by the States of a closed sea, and is an abandonment of the theory of the concession of Alaska to the States by Russia, as the States had heretofore claimed.

The hearing of the Tarte-McGreevy scandal has resumed before the Privileges and Elections committee to-day. Nicholas and Michael S. Connolly were examined chiefly about the non-appearance of Martin Connolly, bookkeeper of the firm. They said he had left their employ, and they did not know his whereabouts. Mr. Fitzpatrick, counsel for Hon. Mr. McGreevy, declared if the witness was not produced, he would have to consider how much longer he would be connected with the case. The announcement created a sensation. Detectives will be engaged to hunt up the missing man.

Mothers

Castoria is recommended by physicians for children teething. It is a purely vegetable preparation, its ingredients are published around each bottle. It is pleasant to the taste and absolutely harmless. It relieves constipation, regulates the bowels, quiets pain, cures diarrhœa and wind colic, allays feverishness, destroys worms, and prevents convulsions, soothes the child and gives it refreshing and natural sleep. Castoria is the children's panacea—the mothers' friend. 35 doses, 35 cents.

Makes the Weak Strong

The marked benefit which people in run down or weakened state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves the claim that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength from which there must follow a reaction of greater weakness than before, but in the most natural way Hood's Sarsaparilla overcomes creates an appetite, purifies the blood, and, in short, gives great bodily, nerve, mental and digestive strength.

"I derived very much benefit from Hood's Sarsaparilla, which I took for general debility. It built me right up, and gave me an excellent appetite." ED. JENKINS, Mt. Savage, Md.

Fagged Out

"Last spring I was completely fagged out. My strength left me and I felt sick and miserable all the time, so that I could hardly attend to my business. I took one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it cured me. There is nothing like it." R. C. REGOLE, Editor Enterprise, Belleville, Mich.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla restored me to good health. Indeed, I might say truthfully it saved my life. To one feeling tired and worn out I would earnestly recommend a trial of Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. PENEL MOSHER, 244 Brooks Street, East Boston, Mass.

A MUSICAL TREAT.

Mr. Harris and the Boy Soprano at St. John's Church.

The organ recital given last evening in St. John's church by Mr. C. A. E. Harris, assisted by the wonderful boy soprano, Master Frederick Williams, of Westminster Abbey choir, was a rare musical treat. Mr. Harriss fully sustained his reputation as a great organist, and held the audience almost spellbound during some of its renditions. This was the first occasion on which the congregation of St. John's has had the opportunity of listening to the full splendor and rare qualities of their magnificent new organ, but if there were ever any doubters as to its being one of the best instruments of its kind, they must certainly, after hearing the masterful style in which it was handled last evening, have had all their doubts dispelled. As an organist Mr. Harriss has no peer on this continent.

The boy soprano, Master Frederick Williams, is a lad of but ten years of age, but his remarkable voice gives evidence of both careful training and a rare natural gift. Those who heard him last evening were charmed by his sweet, clear voice. His two numbers last evening were "With Verdure Clad," from Haydn, and "The Children's Home," by Cowin.

There will be another recital this evening, of which the following is the programme:

Organ Solo—Overture to the Oratorio "Samson" ..... Handel
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
Organ Solo—Funeral March ..... Chopin
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
Air—"I know that my Redeemer liveth" (Messiah) ..... Handel
Master Frederick Williams.
Organ Solo—Triomphal March ..... Harriss
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
Organ Solo—Andante from C Major Symphony ..... Beethoven
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
Air—Angels ever bright and fair ..... Handel
Master Frederick Williams.
Organ Solo—Grand Offertoire D minor .. Batiste
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
Organ Solo—Wedding Music ..... Mendelssohn
Mr. C. A. E. Harriss.
